

WIND ENERGY SUPPLY CHAIN SUMMIT

Emerging opportunities for Michigan manufacturers

July • 28 • 2010

Grand Valley State University
Eberhard Center

register online at: rightplace.org/windsummit/brought to you by:

in partnership with:

WIND ENERGY SUPPLY CHAIN SUMMIT

Emerging opportunities for Michigan manufacturers.

in partnership with:

The American Wind Energy Association (AWEA)

The wind industry is experiencing unprecedented growth, bringing major supply chain challenges to manufacturers and suppliers. Significant opportunities exist for manufacturers and component suppliers across all industries to help feed the supply chain and grow their business. Are you still looking for connections into the wind industry? This could be your answer! Plug in with industry leaders and access great resources. The Wind Energy Supply Chain Summit has the potential to move your business in a new direction.

Who Should Attend

Companies operating in these industry codes:

- 3 2 6 1 9 9 All other Plastics Products
- 3 3 1 5 1 1 Iron Foundries
- 3 3 2 3 1 2 Fabricated Structural Metal
- 3 3 2 9 9 1 Ball and Roller Bearings
- 3 3 3 4 1 2 Industrial, Commercial fans and blowers
- 3 3 3 6 1 1 Turbines, and Turbine Generators, and Turbine Generator Sets
- 3 3 3 6 1 2 Speed Changer, Industrial
- 3 3 3 6 1 3 Power Transmission Equip.
- 3 3 4 4 1 8 Printed Circuits / Electronics Assemblies
- 3 3 4 5 1 9 Measuring and Controlling Devices
- 3 3 5 3 1 2 Motors and Generators
- 3 3 5 9 9 9 Electronic Equip. & Components, NEC

About the Summit

Learn how increasing domestic wind turbine and component manufacturing can help grow your company and profits. Interact with representatives from a range of industries and learn about industry needs, challenges and growth opportunities.

Topics

Topics include an overview of the wind industry supply chain; tips, tools and resources on how to enter the wind industry.

AWEA's Wind Market Analysis and Michigan's Manufacturing Base

Liz Salerno, Director, Industry Data and Analysis, American Wind Energy Association

Emerging Manufacturing Opportunities – A National Perspective

Jeff Anthony, Director of Business Development, American Wind Energy Association

Current State of the Wind Industry in Michigan

Dan Radomski, Co-Founder, Kinetik Partners

Doug Parks, Senior VP of Business Development & Attraction, Michigan Economic Development Corporation

Success Stories from Michigan Wind Suppliers

Wind Turbine Manufacturers Insight - Panel Discussion

“Michigan is becoming a manufacturing powerhouse for the wind energy industry. Many of the skills Michigan workers possess easily transfer to wind energy manufacturing ... spurring billions in investment.”

American Wind Energy Association (AWEA) - 2009 Annual State of the Wind Industry Report

To register and for more information, visit:

rightplace.org/windsummit/